Columbia, Chicago, June 8.—The republican committee on resolutions, by a vote of 26 to 21, decided to incorporate in the platform a plank endorsing the principle of woman suffrage.

The suffrage plank had been rejected by the sub-committee on resolutions, five to four. The fight was carried before the full committee this morning.

If the republican convention should concur in the attitude of the sub-committee, the rejection in the opinion of

The same threat, however, applies to democrats, political leaders pointed out. The progressives all along have stood on a sure ground.

The republican resolutions committee sent out a call for absentees. This was taken to presage a reconsideration of the woman suffrage plank.

Leaders of the congressional union in addresses at the woman's party convention, referred to the weapon in the hands of the women of twelve suffrage states where they are three million women are eligible to vote. The woman's party stands squarely behind the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

Adopt Mexican Plank.
The sub-committee of the republican committee on resolutions, has adopted a plank respecting relations with Mexico offered by Senator Fall; and Mexico, who is a strong attack on the dualist policy. Rejection of a plank offered by Senator Borah, probably will result in the question being taken before the full committee.

Other planks touching on labor, Americanism, national defense, and other questions, have been adopted in the form intended to meet progressive sentiment, and will be reported to the committee. Planks for the recall, the initiative and referendum have been rejected in the sub-committee.

Concerning Mexico the resolutions referred "deplorable" conditions there as a result of Washington policy, and the "shame" which the administration policy has inflicted upon the United States. It pledges the republican party to provide for adequate protection of Americans in and near the borders of their country and in Mexico. It charges democratic ad-

Strong Preparedness Plan.

The preparedness plank will declare both for military and industrial preparedness. Provisions relative to strengthening the army and navy—to meet any possible foe—entirely satisfactory to the navy league, and similar organizations, have been discussed.

The platform declares in favor of a merchant marine through the production of ship development abroad, by substitution, and of such other proper legislation.

National control of transportation agencies through the interstate commerce commission by a constitutional amendment, if necessary, is urged.

The platform declares for restriction of immigration through a literacy test. In order to meet the views of progressives, some of the social justice planks of the 1912 Bull Moose platform are incorporated. Among them is a provision, favoring the enactment of child labor, and women's hours legislation. The social justice

The platform compiled today in co-operation of republican convention platform builders.

The "Americanism" plank minus direct references to hyphenism declared in vigorous terms for "upholding American rights on land and sea," regarding "the honor and influence of our nation" and maintenance of "independence" international law.

The platform also states that: "The supreme duty of civilization is: to make peace permanent after the war regarding military preparedness, the platform declares for "a navy re-estimated at least second rank in battle efficiency," "an army of 250,000 men, and a "system of universal military training"—a citizen soldiery, controlled by the national government. CHIEF KLEIN MAKES REPORT TO COUNCIL

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE TO CITY COUNCIL FOR IMPROVEMENTS IN DEPARTMENT.

HAVE SMALL FIRE LOSS

Asks Commission To Examine Spring Brook Fire Station, To Repair, Rebuild Or Abandon House

In his report made for a year's time, H. C. Klein, chief of the fire department, recommended to the commission council that the Spring Brook fire station, No. 3, located at Spring Brook, be examined by the officials to either abandon the house, repair the present structure or build a modern station house. The fire chief did not commit himself on favoring the removal of the No. 3 station, in his report, but at the meeting held recently before Mayor Pather, he voiced a recommendation that the fire stations be consolidated. The report of the chief engineer will be submitted to the council at their next meeting. There are several matters noted in the report, which will require attention from the commission in the near future. The report is as follows:

To the Honorable, the Mayor and Council of the City of Janesville, Wis.: I herewith report as Chief Engineer of the Janesville Fire Department.

Number of Fire Stations, 3. Four officers and nineteen men. Also independent Fire Police Company, twenty members.

Numbers of fire alarms responded to, 130, a majority of which were "still alarms."

The following is the equipment in service:

One motor driven chemical and hose outfit. One motor driven chief's car and chemical tank. One straight hose wagon. One combination hose and ladder wagon. One sixty-foot aerial ladder outfit. One first size steam fire engine. One third size steam fire engine. Fire alarm telegraph system, consisting of seventy-four boxes, of which six are owned by private parties.

Fire engine, fire alarm telegraph system, consisting of seventy-four boxes, of which six are owned by private parties.

Aggregate Fire Loss. Aggregate amount of losses by fire for twelve months ending Dec. 31, 1932, was in round figures $7,300. A number of improvements, replacements and repairs were made the past year, some of which I mention, and are as follows:

During the month of December, 1932, the department received five hundred and fifty feet of hose, which was purchased as a replacement on account of a like amount given the street department in that year.

The defective fire alarm boxes mentioned in my last report are at this time nearly all repaired and in good working order; those not done at this time will be attended to before cold weather.

In regard to the standardization of our hose coupling threads, which was started about two years ago, I beg leave to report that at this time all of our couplings, play pipes, nozzles etc., have been brought to fit all National standard threads, and in the purchase of new hose threads must be specified on new hose couplings, play pipes, nozzles, etc.

During the past year one was purchased during the past year one was replaced the one that dropped dead while making a fire call out on Pleasant street and was attached to No. 1 hose wagon. The other was to replace one on No. 2 hose wagon. The one, after he was in the service for about two weeks, became sick and died.

The department at this time is in need of three new horses and I recommend that the same be purchased.

During the summer of 1932 a good second-hand steam boiler was purchased and used to replace the defective one on the old Burton fire engine. This repair puts this engine in good shape and will enable us to furnish one good inch stream of water.

On account of a request from the street department that we give them some hose and that some has been worn out in this department, I will recommend that five hundred feet of new hose be purchased.

The department has in use a number of nozzles which have seen years of service and are worn out. I will therefore recommend that three new ones be purchased to replace that number of defective ones.

Truck Needs Repairs. Spring Brook fire station is at this time in need of extensive repairing, and I doubt if it can be repaired so the same will be fit for habitation. Your chief engineer therefore will respectfully ask that this building be examined by the mayor and council, to determine what is the best method to pursue, repair this building, or build a new station, providing this company is to remain in this district. Our motor truck has not worked satisfactorily since the time it collided with No. 1 hose wagon some two years ago. The trouble seems to be in the motor. This, I am fearful, has been badly "racked" through this collision. Your chief engineer, therefore, will call to some competent person to examine the same to see if it can be repaired or if it is in need of a new motor.

I will at this time renew my recommendation made in my last annual report, that more motor apparatus be purchased.

Respectfully submitted,
H. C. KLEIN,
Chief Engineer.

GOSSARD EXPERTS TEACHING STITCHERS

Operation Began Yesterday With Number of Applications By Girls to Outdo Expectations.

With two expert stitchers as teachers of a large number of women help, the Janesville Gossard corset plant began operations yesterday. For the first several days it will be practically impossible to keep the girls from finishing garments, S. S. Gossard stated this morning, but after the stitchers learn the rudiments of the work, production will be increased. Only a small portion of the force which the company will eventually employ here has been put to work. This procedure is to better facilitate the course of instruction to the girls who are working for the first time in the manufacture of corsets and brassiers, the finished product of the local plant. As it is now, the two instructors brought here from the Chicago Gossard plant have all they can do in teaching the force employed thus far.

Close to a hundred more applications are to be considered. When the girls are deemed efficient enough to proceed without constant instruction and supervision, another batch of girls will be put to work. When the batteries of machines on the second floor are all being operated, it is planned to begin the erection of more machinery of similar type on the second floor. To operate each battery twenty girls are employed. Four lines have been placed on the upper floor ready for work thus far.

ENGLISH SOLDIERS WED FRENCH GIRLS

Difference in Languages Immature, For Tommie Teaches Miss France and She Teaches Him.

British Headquarters in France, June 8.—One of the results of the presence of the British army in France is that a good many British soldiers will take French wives home with them. The difference in language, far from being a barrier, is an accessory. Tommie Atkins teaches Miss France English, and Miss France teaches Tommie Atkins French.

There is plenty of leisure for the courtship to develop. Frequently British battalions remain in the same section for months at a time. When the men have done their shift in the trenches they return, "in rest," as the saying goes, to the same villages where they were before. Usually they have quarters in the French houses in a sense they become members of the community.

With the French men folk away the British soldier lends a hand with any heavy work which requires man's strength. Only today the correspondent saw a British soldier drawing a harrow. A feminine hand does some sewing or cooking for him in return. The romantic atmosphere is not lacking. When the Briton says "au revoir" to his sweetheart and starts for the trenches he may never come back; and he is going to fight for France.

On Sunday afternoon the girls are out in their best frocks as they are anywhere else in the world, and walking with them along the roads and lanes are men in khaki, their conversations are a mixture of French and English. It is not romance alone that leads the Briton to marry in France. He has learned to admire the thrift and cleverness of the French woman and the industry in taking the place of her fathers and brothers who are at the front.

Took Permission for Granted.

One day Jack's mother had to spend the afternoon in a distant part of town and it was necessary to leave Jack at home alone. She told him where she would be and that he could telephone her if necessary. About the middle of the afternoon Jack called her up to ask if he might go and play with a little cousin about a block away. His mother told him he could if he would be quiet, whereupon he said: "Thank you, mother. I am there now."

WEATHER FORECAST.

PAX VOBISCU.

The real war in America has not yet started. From Sagamore Hill are intermittent flashes that, translated into the code, from the cipher, mean attacks on both rear, front, by air, by submarine and on the flanks of the republican convention. Heavy artillery, rapid fire guns, light and heavy infantry, cavalry, engineers, horse marines, rough riders and bombs, both aerial and hand grenades, are to be used. It is not trench fighting but a genuine battle that is being waged in Chicago this week.

The outcome is yet in doubt. Managers of favorite sons profess to feel much encouraged, but the sum total of the favorite sons delegations does not equal the forces that the unionist delegations can muster and the combined fall some seven or five votes short of uniting on any one candidate to defeat the aspirations of the Colonel of Sagamore Hill.

While a preliminary skirmish is being waged in the Coliseum, down at the Auditorium a second army of politicians is in battle array. All it needs is a little more fireworks, a few more utterances from some fiery, long-haired, red-mouthed agitator and the law will be in flames and the damage done. "We want Teddy!" is the cry from the Auditorium. "We want Teddy," regardless of what happens. "Teddy or bust!"

It is another repetition of the Nineteen Twelve convention, only this time there are cooler heads in charge of the regular republican convention and the flannel-mouthed orators who split the party four years ago are now assembled in one hall clapping each other on the back and exchanging loud tones. "Rule or ruin!"

It is to be hoped the republican party will see the necessity of making a wise selection of their presidential candidate. If they fail it means defeat. It does not necessarily mean a third party, but a divided party will mean the re-election of Wilson and continuance of the democratic regime of uncertainty. It must be a convention of give and take, but all the giving need not be on the side of the old line republicans, but they must not do all the taking either.

The next twenty-four hours will tell the tale. The lines will be drawn by that time. The oratory of the nominating speeches all wasted on the empty air and the delegates will have decided who they will vote for and possibly the vote taken and counted. The country needs a strong man at this time. It needs a man who is not afraid to call his soul his own and does not need to hide behind others to handle the affairs of state.

We know what Roosevelt stands for. We think we know what Hughes stands for. These two are the names most prominently mentioned and aside from the rabid support, the red-mouthed agitators are giving Roosevelt, there are many outside of the list of old line politicians who would like to see him nominated. There are few who can find any blemishes upon Hughes, even though he has not committed himself. Of the rest of the favorite sons it is almost certain they will be eliminated and the possibilities are Roosevelt or Hughes, with the odds today in favor of Hughes.

A HOME FOR EVERY CHILD.

There are two theories of how best to care for dependent and neglected children. The older plan was to gather them in large institutions. The other idea is to place them in individual homes.

A social worker who recently moved from New York, which has highly developed the system of committing such children to large institutions, moved to another state where the individual home method is used. He said he had always regarded the individual home plan as ideal. Yet when he saw how poorly some of these little waifs fared, he concluded that the orphan in the big New York institutions under competent matrons were better off.

The subject is suggested by an effort to establish the individual home method for such children in New Jersey. Other states are trying it out. It is ideally the correct theory, yet has some abuses in practice.

The number of homeless children is large. Many are made orphans by death, but still many are practically so through drunkenness and immorality of parents. The great majority of people hesitate to take a child from a low down home. Thereby their overprudence is apt to deny them future happiness. Most of these children under good care develop well, and are a comfort to their foster parents.

Some people take children, not because of a longing for child life in the home, but for the work they can squeeze out of them. They drive them along like little pack horses, regardless whether they are getting any good training for life.

A boy from the slums may be getting plenty to eat in the country home where he has been placed, yet may be truly neglected. He may run wild and make trouble in a whole neighborhood or school. Children placed in individual homes need careful inspection by competent people, to make sure they are getting some loving and motherly care.

USE FOR REST ROOM.

There has been considerable skepticism as to the ultimate use that a rest room or comfort station established in Janesville would actually result in for the benefit of the public. Figures really count more than words and when the official statement of the Beloit Center, a similar organization in their office, yearly report state that during the past twelve months seventy-eight thousand girls and women availed themselves of the privileges, all doubt vanishes.

It is to be regretted that the members of all the various civic clubs of the city do not affiliate themselves as club organizations with the civic federation that is seeking to make this rest room a success. However, through the liberality of the business men, who themselves are a bit skeptical as to the final outcome, the rest room is to be established.

That it should be a part of the city government is certain, but fate evidently is against such an order of affairs. Other cities may establish them as civic centers, maintained by the city government, but not Janesville, and consequently the city must be taxed as individuals for the benefits that will accrue from such an organization.

Of course it is understood there are certain legal entanglements that prevent the establishment of such a building on the Corn Exchange square but to the average layman it would appear that clever manipulation of the law by the city officials might erect a building suitable for the purposes suggested. One great trouble that exists in Janesville is the red tape that is necessary to start anything with a view to success. Strange that other communities do not experience such troubles, but some way or other Janesville always does, and there should be some remedy at hand that could be applied. The merchants are becoming tired of being taxed for everything in the way of civic improvement and at the same time pay taxes, yet they give and give far more than they can afford. Why not investigate the matter thoroughly and see if the cause of a civic rest room can be handled by the city officials?

SPEAKING OF VERACITY.

Speaking of veracity, everyone in Washington has been looking for an explosion at the White House. When William Jennings Bryan resigned his position as secretary of state the broad intimation was given to the press, by the White House, that Mr. Bryan had nullified President Wilson's submarine warning Germany by telling the Austrian ambassador, Dr. Dumba, that it was not to be taken seriously, had done so without Wilson's authority or consent, and that the discovery that Mr. Bryan had done so came as a great surprise to the president. A short time ago, in a public speech at the Lake Mohonk conference on arbitration, Secretary Bryan declared that the president was in New York when he (Bryan) had his now famous conversation with Dr. Dumba, but that he (Bryan) had immediately after the conference written out a detailed account of his conversation with the ambassador and had on the next day handed the account to Mr. Wilson, who had read it and approved it. When Mr. Bryan's statement was reported in Washington everyone expected an emphatic denial from Mr. Wilson, because he denied it puts Mr. Wilson in the position of having deliberately sought to deceive the American people. But thus far no denial has been forthcoming.

THE MEDIATION STAGE.

"For some time it has been apparent that the publicity insisted upon by railroad managers has had a marked effect upon the agitators threatening strike and refusal of arbitration. A banker was asked concerning prospects for a strike, and he replied: 'The matter will probably come to mediation.' He did not mean 'mediation' at all; he meant 'arbitration.' But he spoke a great truth. Apparently, and judging by the action of the Alchison railroad employees, that is what the proposed railroad strike has now come to 'mediation,' says an eastern exchange.

"When one-fourth of the railroad employees, with their hands on the throttle of the transportation life of the country, can secure one-half the railroad wages and still demand more, there is time for 'mediation.'"

The man who complains that congressmen have no individuality and independence, may be the same one who also complains because they disregard the sentiment of their home districts.

After complaining because ministers don't pay their debts promptly, it is customary for the church treasurer to inform the minister that he can have his check in a month or two.

The senate is trying to cut out the free seed appropriation. Gracious goodness, don't the senators know that the United States treasury exists to help them get re-elected?

It is betting so that a man who only runs his automobile twenty miles an hour is a greenhorn, whose slow speed displays his inexperience and awkwardness.

The deliberations of the national conventions consist of timing the rosters so if they can yell an hour and a half, or only an hour, for their candidates.

Unfortunately, the people who can express most eloquently the way the town should be run are not usually the same ones who are willing to take office.

A correspondent asks what is meant by the term "Favorite Sons." Usually they are men whom no one ever heard of outside of their own states.

The cause of preparedness has now advanced so far that it is believed the United States can take strong ground in dealing with Hayti.

A library worker is reported to have inquired whether political platforms should be catalogued as summer fiction or fairy tales.

PARTY UNITY HOPE OF REPUBLICAN PARTY

Mr. Raymond Robins, mentioned the name of Roosevelt early in his address. There is none of the high-pitched hurrah noise about the Hughes boom. But there is a lot of hard plugging which bids fair to get results when it comes to actual voting on the floor of the convention.

Wide Gulf Evident.

It is evident that there is a wide gulf between the T. R. adherents and the republicans of the Hughes stripe—at least there is on the surface. It is for "Teddy" because we know right where he stands all the time," was the statement of one progressive delegate, a sentiment which sums up the whole bulk of the progressive attitude. And the progressive delegates try to live up to the example of their leader by shouting and talking on every occasion in his behalf. In the hotel lobbies they are gathered in groups all talking "Teddy. One gray-whiskered old veteran had an audience of a hundred or more while he harangued for R. in the lobby of the Congress Hotel.

The republican delegates don't have much to say. They are thinking a great deal and working a lot more. They realize that the party's prestige and honor is at stake. They want a candidate of the type who will effect a union of the progressives and republicans, but they believe that the progressives may be brought back by the adoption of the right kind of a platform. The platform will be the thing, and the candidate, whoever he is, must carry it out.

There is little hope that the republican party will agree to the nomination of Roosevelt, no matter how loud the clamor from the progressives. This will not necessarily mean that the progressives will not accept the republican candidate, because finally, when it comes to the vote, they will give their support to the republican nominee, if the platform is right, and every effort will be made to make it so.

LUTHERANS CONVENE AT GALESBURG, ILL.

Augustana Synod National Body of Evangelical Lutheran Church

Open Convention.

Galesburg, Ill., June 8.—The Augustana Synod, the national body of the Evangelical Lutheran church, opened its fifty-seventh annual convention in the First Lutheran church today and heard the report of the president, Rev. L. A. Johnson, D.D., of St. Paul, Minn., in which he exhaustively treated of the activities of the church during the past year.

He stated that the various educational institutions of the synod, of which there are ten, are in prosperous condition. Minneapolis college at Minneapolis, Minn., has raised over $100,000 for new buildings during the year, and North Star college at Wren, Minn., has through the generosity of its friends and supporters, been enabled to wipe out its enormous debt. At Augustana college, work has been commenced on the new gymnasium which is to be 30 by 100, and will cost upwards of $40,000. For the hospitals at Moline, Ill., and Portland, Ore., new buildings have been erected during the year, and Augustana hospital, Chicago, expects to expend more than a quarter of a million dollars for new buildings this year. New buildings are in process of erection at Marinette, Wis., and near Alexandria, Minn. The Immanuel Deaconess home at Omaha, Neb., has collected a large amount of funds for new buildings at that institution. Five pastors of the synod died during the year, the most prominent of whom was Rev. Eric Nelson, D.D., L.L.D., of Vasa, Minn., who was a pioneer and one of the founders of the synod, and who suggested the name "Augustana" which it now bears.

The reports of Augustana College and Theological Seminary were made. This institution, which is owned and controlled by the synod, is one of the oldest colleges in the state, founded in 1860. The various reports showed remarkable progress by the institution. This institution is a member of the North Central association of colleges and is rated by the state university of Illinois as one of the four leading colleges in the state. In its reports it was brought out that the institution at Rock Island has property valued at $500,000, with nearly $500,000 productive funds. No less than 135 students were graduated from the institution at the recent commencement, being one of the largest classes in its history. The total number of graduates now numbers over 2,500. The board of directors has recommended that an additional professorship be established in the Divinity school, and this recommendation will, no doubt, be acted upon favorably. The board also recommends that a fellowship of $1,000 be established to be made available to young men of fitness for equipping themselves to fill possible vacancies in the Divinity school faculty.

It is expected that a petition will be presented from students of Augustana college at Rock Island and Gustavus college at St. Peter, Minn., for the reinstatement of football at these institutions. The synod abolished all intercollegiate sports in 1905, but permitted the reinstatement of all except football at its convention in Rock Island in 1910. The students now petition that the synod will permit the reinstatement of intercollegiate football also.

Most of Friday will be given over to the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Dr. T. N. Hasselquist, one of the synod's founders. He began his work here in Galesburg where he was pastor of the First Lutheran church from 1852-1863, and exerted a strong influence on spiritual and external work of the synod.

On Saturday it is expected that reports will be presented by the various boards having in charge the synod's foreign mission work in India, China, Japan, and Porto Rico. The appointments needed for the support of these missions will be determined upon, and special work will be undertaken for the relief of the Lutheran mission in India, hitherto supported by societies in Germany.

The convention will devote considerable time to the pension fund for superannuated ministers and professors, and the widows and minor children of clergymen and teachers. At the last convention, in Minneapolis, provision was made for a committee of 100 laymen to raise $500,000 for this fund within the next two or three years, and the report of the committee will come before the synod for its approval.

CANNOT GATHER FLOWERS TO MAKE FRENCH PERFUME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Paris, June 8.—Parisian perfumers are soon to be hard hit; and likewise is millady's bouquet. Riviera advisers complain that there is not sufficient labor to gather the orange blossoms, hence millady will soon find the trusty atomizer lacking those favorite and world known scents a la Francis. Female labor, which the perfume distillers hoped to enlist, has not been found and it is declared now almost too late to save the situation. In addition, the scent makers are handicapped by lack of water due to the blocking of the Sague canal, especially constructed to supply the distilleries. The scope of the Riviera perfume industry is shown by the fact that there are 1,600 members of the Orange Flower Growers' association, most of whom will suffer heavy financial losses on account of the war, labor and water shortage.

NEWS NOTES MOVIELAND

Los Angeles society women have banded together to kill a whole flock of birds with one stone and this stone is the American Woman Film Co. Motion pictures of the highest moral and artistic tone, single standard of morals and economic independence for women are some of the aims. The new film company is backed financially almost entirely by Los Angeles society women with a bent for literature. The studio in Hollywood is being prepared for action and it is reported that the concern has a huge capital to draw upon. Only ten-reel features are to be produced. Saul of Tarsus, a biblical setting, in which Arthur Maude is to play the leading role, will be the first production. The leading feminine part will be played by Lucertia del Valle. Mabel Van Buren, last seen with Blanche Sweet in "The Sowers" on the Paramount program, also is in the cast. Other stars are to be announced later.

ARE FILMS IN DANGER OF LOSING THEIR HOLD?

Jesse L. Lasky, producer of Farrar's "Carmen" and other top grade film plays is at a standstill. The assertion is important because everyone connected with film plays recognizes that when improvement in film plays stops the movies are in danger of losing their hold on the public. Lasky points out that great progress in movie photography has been made in the past year, and that the best movie photography meets the demands of critical audiences. Also great progress has been made in the arrangement of scenes, the building up of the story, or what the movie producers call "continuity."

DECLARES STORIES ARE FALLING SHORT.

It's in the plays or stories themselves that the film plays are falling short, says Lasky. Other producers recognize this. Plots from novels and staged plays aren't good enough. They lose their original value when translated into pictures, because they were not designed for pictures. The best results are obtained now with stories written especially for pictures. One company, without big names and with very ordinary photography is winning great favor on the strength of the stories in its plays. Lasky has been successful several times in the stories of his plays. These successes include "The Cheat." "But movie stories of a quality which permits us to move forward in the development of film plays are not not obtainable at any price," says Lasky.

The entertainment provided by the Barnes big touring wild animal circus is original, new, clean and instructive. Many sensational and thrilling features abound throughout the program, which are presented by famous men and women, wild animal trainers, who risk their lives in showing ferocious beasts to the public. Sixty lions, tigers, leopards, pumas and jaguars are performers with the show. Thirty of the largest, full-grown, man-eating lions are used in one act. This lion act is sensational to a remarkable degree and the largest group of these great cats ever successfully presented before the public. They are well trained and are handled in the act by one trainer. Their value is placed at $50,000. A troupe of thirty bears are a part of the wild animal act section. American and Russian grizzlies, cinnamon, sable, slough, polar and black bears comprise the species. Their acting is principally along comedy lines. Big Bill, the gigantic wrestling grizzly, is the star of the lot. A herd of elephants have a star act with the show. A complete farce comedy and some difficult posing feats are done by these ponderous brutes. Augmenting the wild animal features are many others presented with domestic animals. Dogs, goats and the Barnes challenge horses and ponies are prominently displayed. Over 1,000 animal actors are carried by the show, and sixty-five big acts produced. A continuous line of wholesome nonsense is provided by forty clown elephants, bears, mules, dogs, ponies and monkeys. The glittering, mile-long parade is presented at 10:30. Performance hours are 2 and 8 p. m. The Barnes circus will exhibit in Janesville June 9.

An added attraction to the circus is Fred Fulton, the Minnesota giant, who is matched to fight Jess Willard next Labor day for the heavyweight championship of the world. Fulton is doing his training for the fight with the Barnes Circus and positively will appear at each performance in a spectacular boxing bout and training stunt.

from America upsets the traditions of the pretty Scottish mountain hamlet where she goes to live after her father's death. Billie Burke stars in "Peggy," which is the attraction at the Beverly Theatre on Friday.

An orphan and heiress, Peggy Cameron is a lively member of New York's exclusive set. There comes to her a letter from her uncle in Scotland, offering her a home with him. Peggy accepts the invitation, and comes breezing into the little town of Woodville in the Scottish highlands, one bright Sunday morning. Her automobile causes consternation among the villagers.

Andrew Cameron, (William H. Thompson) the uncle, is a dour old Scot, who doesn't approve of Peggy or her car. He and the minister, Rev. Donald Bruce (William Desmond), surprise Peggy working under her masculine disguise. Her uncle is shocked and forbids her ever to appear again in masculine garb. Nevertheless Peggy dons her cousin's masculine dress one night and goes for a spin. It starts to rain and the automobile gets stalled. Peggy goes into a village inn for shelter, and on coming out bumps into the minister. He tries to rebuke her, but Peggy runs home in high glee. With the children, however, she gets along famously.

"Britton of the Seventh" True to Life. Because of the fact that it deals with events of American life and is pregnant with the excitement of wilder days, "Britton of the Seventh," a five part Vitaphone feature at the Beverly tonight is a refreshing change from the ordinary and should be a conspicuous attraction. Ned Finley, who portrays the part of General Custer in "Britton of the Seventh," (Cyrus Townsend Brady's) photoplay of frontier life and personal habits of the martyr of the Big Horn and gives a splendid impersonation of the ill fated Indian fighter. Custer was a man of unlimited daring; not a big man but what "old timers" would call a "gritty" man, who knew the danger before he plunged forth on the perilous mission which ended in the historical massacre and which wiped out himself and his valiant band.

AT THE APOLLO.

Pauline Frederick in "Zaza." The Famous Players Film company's magnificent picturization of the immortal drama, "Zaza," with Pauline Frederick, the supreme emotional artist in the celebrated role, is one of the greatest dramatic achievements yet contributed to the screen. The marvellous sympathy and mastery with which Miss Frederick has interpreted the emotion and the complex character of the Paris music hall singer is a lasting monument to her amazing histrionic powers. "Zaza" is one of the few greatest stage roles ever created, and Miss Frederick's rendition of the exacting characterization, together with the sumptuous production given the subject by the Famous Players Film company has made this great photoplay one of the foremost triumphs of the screen. It will be presented at the Apollo on Friday.

"The Old Homestead" Tonight. "The Old Homestead," the greatest rural drama ever written, in which the late Denman Thompson starred for over thirty years will again be presented at the Apollo tonight. Through the active co-operation of the younger Thompson, the producers have been able to preserve to a remarkable degree the atmosphere and spirit of the original play. Of special importance was the obtaining of permission to use the old Thompson homestead in New Hampshire, which was the setting depicted in the original play as the background of the film. Director James Kirkwood and his company went to the old New England village where they spent several weeks in photographing scenes in and about the Thompson farm and in the outlying country where there still exists a remarkable

Just Why Your Hair Falls Out

Alcohol in Hair Tonics, and Missing Hair Elements Always Cause Baldness.

A good many people have never believed that hair could actually be grown on a bald spot. That's because they have never used VOLA-VITA.

The hair on the right has shined out from the alcohol in hair tonics—the other hair is vigorous after treatment by VOLA-VITA.

cause it has really never been done before. But the way to do it, surely and beyond question, has now been discovered.

The new scientific hair discovery, VOLA-VITA, actually does it. It is no longer a doubt, it is a fact, hair has been analyzed and is found to contain five vital substances. Unless these are in correct quantities, hair loses its vigor. It dies, falls out, turns gray, dandruff and baldness result. When the missing substances are restored, a remarkable change results. VOLA-VITA restores these missing substances so wonderfully that hair quickly begins to grow lavishly, even on shiny bald heads, dandruff promptly and surely vanishes, and more remarkable still, the original color of the hair—whether it was black, brown or red—is restored to any gray, faded or bleached hair. VOLA-VITA kills hair-drying, scalp-severing, itching scalp conditions. VOLA-VITA contains no alcohol. There is no other hair treatment in the world like it. "Yes, yes," murmured the good woman. "We mustn't make the worst of things."

"Well, there was something else I had to say, and he wants you to hear it, too," said Sibyl. "We better go down, mother Sheridan."

She led the way, Mrs. Sheridan following obediently, but when they came to a spot close to Bibbs' door, Sibyl stopped. "I want to tell you about it first," she said, abruptly. "It isn't a secret, of course, in any way; it's something the whole family has to know, and the sooner the whole family knows it the better. It's something it wouldn't be right for us all not to understand, and of course father Sheridan most of all. But I want to just kind of go over it first with you; it'll kind of help me to see I got it all straight. I haven't got any reason for saying it except the good of the family, and it's nothing to me, one way or the other, of course, except for that. I oughtn't to've behaved the way I did that night, and it seems to me if there's anything I can do to help the family, I ought to, because it would help show I felt the right way. Well, what I want to do is to tell this so's to keep the family from being made a fool of. I don't want to see the family just made use of and twisted around her finger by somebody that's got no more heart than so much ice, and just as sure to bring troubles in the long run as—Edith's mistake is. Well, then, this is the way it is. I'll just tell you how it looks to me and see if it don't strike you the same way."

Within the room, Bibbs, much annoyed, tapped his ear with his pencil. He wished they wouldn't stand talking near his door when he was trying to write. He had just taken from his trunk the manuscript of a poem begun the preceding Sunday afternoon, and he had some ideas he wanted to fix upon paper before they maliciously seized the first opportunity to vanish, for they were but gossamer. Bibbs was pleased with the beginnings of his poem, and if he could carry it through he meant to dare greatly with it—he would venture it upon an editor. For he had his plan of life now; his day would be of manual labor and thinking—he could think of his friend and he could think in cadences for poems, to the cranking of the strong machines—and if his father turned him out of home and out of the works, he would work elsewhere and live elsewhere. His father had the right, and it mattered very little to Bibbs—he faced the prospect of a working man's lodging house without trepidation. He could find a washstand to write upon, he thought.

He Felt That Something Inevitable Was Happening.

and every evening when he left Mary he would write a little, and he would write on holidays and on Sundays—on Sundays in the afternoon. In a lodging house, at least, he wouldn't be interrupted by his sister-in-law's choosing the immediate vicinity of his door for conversations evidently important to herself, but merely disturbing to him. He frowned plaintively, wishing he could think of one polite way of asking her to go away. But as she went on, he started violently dropping manuscript and pencil upon the floor.

"I don't know whether you heard it, mother Sheridan," she said, "but this old Vertrees house, next door, has been sold on foreclosure, and all they got out of it was an agreement that lets 'em live there a little longer. Roscoe told me, and he says he heard Mr. Vertrees has been up and down the streets more'n two years, tryin' to get a job he could call a 'position,' and couldn't land it. You heard anything about it, mother Sheridan?"

"Well, I did know they been doin' their own housework a good while back," said Mrs. Sheridan. "And now they're doin' the cookin', too."

Sibyl seat forth a little titter with a sharp edge. "I hope they find something to cook!" She said her piano mightily quick after Jim died!

Bibbs jumped up. He was trembling from head to foot and he was dizzy—of all the real things he could never have dreamed in his dream the last would have been what he heard now. He felt that something incredible was happening, and that he was powerless to stop it. It seemed to him that heavy blows were falling upon his head and upon Mary's; it seemed to him that he and Mary were being struck and beaten physically—and that something hideous impended. He wanted to shout to Sibyl to be silent, but he could not; he could only stand, swallowing and trembling.

"What I think the whole family ought to understand is just this," said Sibyl, sharply. "These people were so hard up that this Miss Vertrees started after Bibbs before they knew whether he was insane or not! They'd got a notion he might be, from his being in a sanitarium, and Mrs. Vertrees asked me if he was insane, the very first day Bibbs took the daughter out auto riding!" She paused a moment, looking at Mrs. Sheridan, but listening intently. There was no sound from within the room.

"No!" exclaimed Mrs. Sheridan. "It's the truth," Sibyl declared, loudly. "Oh, of course we were all crazy about that girl at first. We were pretty green when we moved up here, and we thought she'd get us in—but it didn't take me long to read her! Her family were down and out when it came to money—and they had to go after it, one way or another, somehow! So she started for Roscoe; but she found out pretty quick he was married, and she turned right around to Jim—and she landed him! There's no doubt about it, she had Jim, and if he'd lived you'd had another daughter-in-law before this, as sure as I stand here telling you the God's truth about it! Well—when Jim was left in the cemetery she was waiting out there to drive home with Bibbs! Jim wasn't cold—and she didn't know whether Bibbs was insane or not, but he was the only one of the rich Sheridan boys left. She had to get him."

The texture of what was the truth made an even fabric with what was not, in Sibyl's mind; she believed every word that she uttered, and she spoke with the rapidity and vehemence of fierce conviction.

"What I feel about it is," she said, "it oughtn't to be allowed to go on. It's too mean! I like poor Bibbs, and I don't want to see him made such a fool of, and I don't want to see the family made such a fool of! I like poor Bibbs, but if he'd only stop to think a minute himself he'd have to realize he isn't the kind of a man any girl would be apt to fall in love with. He's better looking—lately, maybe, but you know how he was—just kind of a long white rag in good clothes. And girls like men with some go to 'em—some sort of dashiness, anyhow! Nobody ever looked at poor Bibbs before, and neither'd she—no, sir! till she'd tried both Roscoe and Jim first! It was only when her and her family got desperate that she—"

Mrs. Sheridan reached the top of the stairs, and she glanced over her shoulder quickly, but Bibbs was not following; he had gone back into his room.

"He—be looked—oh, terrible bad!" stammered Mrs. Sheridan. "I—I wish—"

"Still, it's a good deal better he knows about it," said Sibyl. "I shouldn't wonder it might turn out the very best thing could happen. Come on!"

And completing their descent to the library, the two made their appearance to Roscoe and his father. Sibyl at once gave a full and truthful account of what had taken place, repeating her own remarks, and omitting only the fact that it was through her design that Bibbs had overheard them.

"But as I told mother Sheridan," she said, in conclusion, "it might turn out for the very best that he did hear—just that way. Don't you think so, father Sheridan?"

He merely grinned in reply, and sat rubbing the thick hair on the top of his head with his left hand and looking at the fire. He had given no sign of being impressed in any manner by her exposure of Mary Vertrees' character; but his impassivity did not dismay Sibyl—it was Bibbs whom she desired to impress, and she was content in that matter.

"I'm sure it was all for the best," she said. "It's over now, and he knows what she is. In one way I think it was lucky, because, just hearing a thing that way, a person can tell it's so—and he knows I haven't got any ax to grind except his own good and the good of the family."

Mrs. Sheridan went nervously to the door and stood there, looking toward the stairway. "I wish—I wish I knew what he was doin'," she said. "He did look terrible bad. It was like something had been done to him that was—I don't know what. I never saw any body look like he did. He looked—so queer. "It was like you'd—she came down the hall, 'George!'"

"Yes'm?"

"Were you up in Mr. Bibbs' room just now?"

"Yes'm. He ring bell; tole me make him fish in his grate. I done 'bull' him nice fish. I reckon he ain't feelin' so well. Yes'm." He departed.

"What do you expect he wants a fire for?" she asked, turning toward her husband. "The house is warm as can be. I do wish I—"

"Oh, quit frettin'!" said Sheridan.

"Well, I—I kind o' wish you hadn't said anything, Sibyl. I know you meant it for the best and all, but I don't believe it would be so much harm if—"

"Mother Sheridan, you don't mean you want that kind of a girl in the family? Why she—"

"I don't know, I don't know," the troubled woman quavered. "If he liked her it seems kind of a pity to spoil it. He's so queer, and he hasn't ever taken much enjoyment. And besides, I believe the way it was, there was more chance of him bein' willin' to do what papa wants him to. If she wants to marry him—"

Sheridan interrupted her with a hoarse laugh. "She don't!" he said. "You're barkin' up the wrong tree, Sibyl. She ain't that kind of a girl."

"But, father Sheridan, didn't she—"

He cut her short. "That's enough. You may mean all right, but you guess wrong. So do you, mamma."

Sibyl cried out, "Oh! But just look how she ran after Jim—"

"She did not," he said, curtly. "She wouldn't take Jim. She turned him down cold."

"But that's impossi—"

"It's not. I know she did."

Sibyl looked flatly incredulous. "And you needn't worry," he said, turning to his wife. "This won't have any effect on your idea, because there wasn't any sense to it, anyhow. D'you think she'd be very likely to take Bibbs—after she wouldn't take Jim? She's a good-hearted girl, and she lets Bibbs come to see her, but if she'd ever given him one sign of encouragement the way you women think, he wouldn't of acted the stubborn fool he has—he'd 'a' been at me long ago, beggin' me for some kind of a job he could support a wife on. There's nothin' in it—and I've got the same old fight with him on my hands I've had all his life—and the Lord knows what he won't do to balk me! What's happened now 'll probably only make him twice as stubborn, but—"

"Sh!" Mrs. Sheridan, still in the doorway, lifted her hand. "That's his step—he's comin' downstairs." She shrunk away from the door as if she feared to have Bibbs see her. "I—I wonder," she said, almost in a whisper—"I wonder what he's goin' to do?"

Her timorousness had its effect upon the others. Sheridan rose, frowning, but remained standing beside his chair and Roscoe moved toward Sibyl, who stared uneasily at the open doorway. They listened as the slow steps descended the stairs and came toward the library.

Bibbs stepped upon the threshold, and with sick and haggard eyes looked slowly from one to the other until at last his gaze rested upon his father. Then he came and stood before him.

"I'm sorry you've had so much trouble with me," he said, gently. "You won't, any more. I'll take the job you offered me."

Germany uses the metric system of weights and measures, but with German names. The system of weights may best be compared with ours by noting that one kilogram, which equals 1,000 grams, is equal to 2.2046 pounds.

TWO CUBS RELEASED TO MINOR LEAGUES

Yerkes and Doolan Cut Off Pay Roll of Chicago Nationals.—Seek New Men.

Mike Doolan and Steve Yerkes, former Federal league players, now with the Cubs, were both released to minor league organizations by President Wernham yesterday. The Chicago Nationals are due for a big shake-up, as the club president left to put through a deal in the east which will replace the released players and, it is claimed, make the Cubs a stronger team.

Main kept both the White Sox and Cubs idle, the Nationals being at Philadelphia and the Sox to play Philadelphia at Chicago. Too many bosses is said to be the cause of trouble among the Cubs, for each member of the millionaire board of directors wants to have something to say about the operation of the club, and it is claimed none of the directors are experienced in baseball. Consequently a serious handicap is placed on the club, especially when they are playing at home.

The Sox were again idle, making a two day lay-off, and the team was eager to get into action against the Braves today, providing that the sun gets in its needed work at Comiskey Park. Fred McMullin, the third sacker, has recovered from his injury sufficiently to play today.

All the Sox pitchers were given several hours drill to keep their arms in trim for the hard schedule to follow at Chicago.

In the game at Boston, Hall held the Braves to four hits and his team out-hit Boston, but the Braves won the game 3 to 2. St. Louis was unable to touch Regan until the eighth, when they bunched three hits and a pass, scoring two runs.

Johnson's single in the twelfth scored Sisler from second, and St. Louis defeated the New York Americans at St. Louis 6 to 5. This is the fifth straight victory for St. Louis.

A few years ago George Cohan and Willie Collier had an argument at a world's series game. "I tell you it's a hit," said Cohan. "I say it is not," retorted Collier. An investigator then stepped over and said: "Pardon me, gentlemen, but that was a hit." "What do you mean?" asked Cohan. "Merkle's hit," laughed Collier. "We were arguing whether the play hit Pay to Advertise is a hit."

The experiment of using only players who had no professional experience seemed to be working out fairly well in the Kitty League. The teams are staging an interesting brand of ball. Two of the three opening games were close ones. Madisonville beat Dawson 4 to 3 in twelve innings and Henderson beat Owensboro 3 to 1. Clarksville and Hopkinsville complete the circuit.

ROCKFORD MAROONS PLAY HERE SUNDAY

Dr. Parker Will Pitch the Game for the Cardinals.—New Catcher and Shortstop.

The next game on the Cardinals' schedule, to be played Sunday at the Rockford Maroons, is with the Rockford Maroons, the strongest club of the Illinois city. The Maroons have played here nearly every season for the past five or six years, and all the fans have made a market of the Cardinals, and they have won the majority of games played here.

Against them the Cardinals will have Dr. Parker, who pitched against the St. Louis Cardinals in the few bad breaks made on fielding and base running. He certainly could deliver the goods on the mound. A new catcher will have to be secured, and it is reported Hybert will not be able to play short this Sunday. Pesch, the heavy hitting and fast third-sacker, and Joe Nelson and Blake will make up the infield. Plugging may be sent to the mound for a few innings to allow the home fans to see him work against a stronger club than Monroe had.

Kewpie trip may have to postpone his trip east. The lightweight star has been taken down with an attack of tonsillitis. Kewpie has a plethora of fancy offers for bouts in the east this summer, and his illness will delay his trip to the seaboard.

The fate of Joe Martina with Chattanooga is held up as a lesson to aspiring pitchers. Martina let Kid Roberfeld throw him to death. He worked in thirteen games in a month's time. Now he's a wreck and other pitchers are holding the hill where he was wont to shine. Reports would indicate that he is done, for this year at least.

Harry Pollok announces that he has finally succeeded in signing Jack Dillon and Frank Moran for a ten-round set to in the Brooklyn baseball park June 23. Dillon is to get $10,000 and Moran $27,000. That means a $30,000 gate to break even, but the effusive Mr. Pollok declares he's going to come through with a nice profit.

There is a new rule in force in the National league which bars the players from throwing an extra ball around between innings, but the players, by a tacit agreement, get around it. The pitcher hands an extra ball to the batter. The Troy club asked Newark for a shortstop and Newark sent on a first baseman named Jasmer who had been picked up by Newark Manager Wacker of Troy promptly sent him back as not according to specifications.

CHICAGO COLISEUM HAS HISTORY RICH IN U. S. POLITICS

Three Republican Conventions Have Been Held in Building.—Arrangements for This Convention.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, June 8.—The Chicago Coliseum, where the Republican national convention of 1916 is being held, has a history rich in political interest. More national conventions have been held in it than any other building in the United States.

Three Republican national conventions have been held with its walls and it was there also that the Progressive party, in 1912, held its first national convention and nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president. The Republicans nominated their presidential ticket in the Chicago Coliseum in 1904, 1908 and 1912.

The building was designed as a model convention hall but later adapted to broader uses. It was built by Charles F. Gunther and severe business associates of the site of the old Libby Prison War Museum, at Vabash avenue and Fifteenth street, less than a mile from the hotel and retail shopping district.

The castelated walls of the old war prison were used for the Wabash Avenue side of the structure. It was built of stone, brick, steel and glass and was finished in 1906. The building is 403 feet long, 170 feet wide and 110 feet high, and cost nearly $1,000,000. It has a wide balcony extending around both sides of the walls and is well lighted and ventilated.

For this year's convention two additional balconies with seats for 722 persons have been built between the main floor and the regular balcony. This gives a total seating capacity of 12,400, of which 9,000 seats are on the main floor and 3,000 on the balconies. The crowds will enter through four main doors on the Wabash Avenue side. There are twenty-two exits.

There will be 110 doorkeepers and 110 ushers in addition to a large special detail of police to handle the great crowds. The seating arrangements will follow the general plan of former conventions although several changes have been made which it is believed will add to the comfort and convenience of the delegates and visitors.

The speaker's platform, twenty feet long and forty feet wide, is at the south end of the building. It will provide seats for the officers of the convention and members of the Republican national committee. Suspended over the stand is a specially designed sounding board. It consists of an inverted concave pyramid built of wood with the apex over the speaker's head. The sound waves of the presiding officer. It is designed to throw the voice through the hall. Directly in the rear of the speaker's stand is a raised platform with 200 seats for the delegates and their distinguished guests. On either side of the speaker's platform, extending the entire width of the building, is a press section, containing 555 seats, for working newspaper men.

Seats for Delegates. In front of the speaker's stand are the seats for the 991 delegates, and back of this is the space set aside for the seating of the alternates. The section reserved for delegates and alternates is enclosed with a heavy rail. The rest of the main floor and all the balconies will be used for seats to accommodate the crowds of visitors.

Adjoining the Coliseum on the south is an annex three stories high, 170 feet deep and with a frontage of about 100 feet on Wabash street. It is connected with the main building by several broad entrances.

In the basement of the annex, at the south end of the main building and near the speaker's stand is the telegraph and telephone room where scores of special wires have been furnished for the use of the news gathering associations and newspapers in sending stories of the convention to every section of the country. In the basement of the main building is a completely equipped temporary hospital in charge of twenty-five of Chicago's leading physicians and surgeons who have volunteered their services for the occasion.

Offices for Officials. The upper floors of the annex have been fitted up with the administrative rooms of the officers of the convention. Here are the private offices of the chairman, secretary, treasurer, and a score of minor officials. The convention postoffice for the prompt distribution of mail to the officials and delegates is in this section. There is a large meeting room for the Republican national committee and numerous rooms for the use of committees of the convention.

In the decoration of the convention hall the managers departed from the long established practice of practically relying exclusively on flags and bunting to obtain the desired artistic effect. This year the scheme of interior ornamentation is more elaborate and artistic than ever before, according to experts. The plan was designed by C. R. Hall, superintendent of the Coliseum, and Julius Flor, an architect. White and gold dominate the color scheme, while American flags and bunting are used to complete the working out of the decorative plan.

Biggest thousands of white cloth, 4,000 yards of gold cloth, 3,000 yards of red, white and blue bunting and 250 American flags and shields were used in the interior ornamentation of the convention hall. The bare brick walls and steel girders which support the roof are concealed by twenty-six panels of white cloth, each twenty feet square and five feet deep. Each panel is decorated with a deep flounce of gold cloth. Hanging from the roof in the center under the large glass vaulted center are large bars of gold which structure the artistic effect without obstructing light and air. The balconies are tastefully festooned in red, white and blue bunting caught every ten
